

Introduction to RSL

1)RSL is...

- a)Interpreted language
- b)Compiled language
- c)Domain-Specific language
- d)Relative Strength Index
- e)General purpose language
- f)Modular language

2)There are a lot of possible entry points for RSL?

- a)True
- b)False

3)Which of the following sentences are true?

- a)It is possible to directly assign new values to agent variables with RSL.
- b)The agent variable values change with context.
- c)It is possible to define new agent variables in RSL.
- d)Agent variables are predefined and are reserved words.

4)What advantages do built in function give to RSL.

- a)They make it possible to write a shorter and understandable code.
- b)In some cases they help to save in computation time, since there will be less interpreting.
- c)They write code for the programmer.
- d)They never sleep.

5)Which of the sentences are true about built in commands.

- a)They are deprecated.
- b)It is possible to change context with some of them.
- c)Most of them will crash the Raintree Agent.
- d)It is not possible to give parameters to them.