This is an example:

Jüri: Where is the hammer? I cannot see it.

Enn: It is here. Please take it. And I can give you some nails too, if you *need*¹ them.

Jüri: Thank you, I have nails. But I need a saw. This stick is too long.

Enn: What are you doing?

Jüri: I am making a doll's table for my little sister.

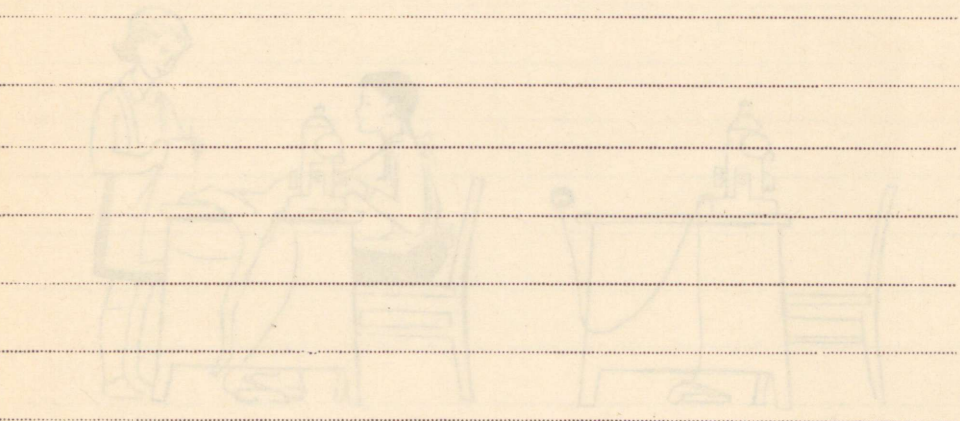

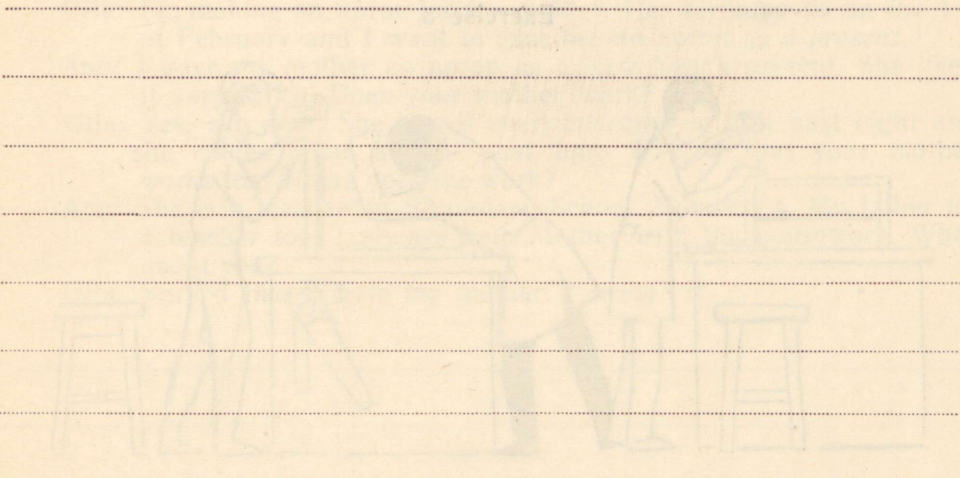

Enn: So you have a little sister.

Jüri: Yes, I have. She will be five next week. Mother will give her a new doll and I shall make her a doll's table and 3 chairs.

Enn: I can help you. I can make her a doll's bed.

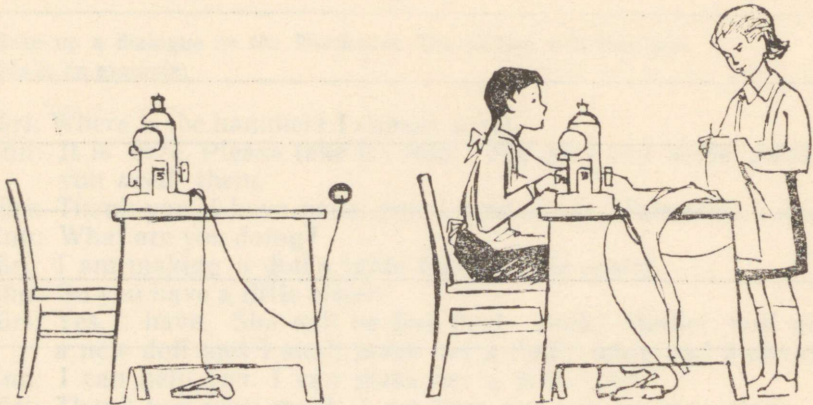

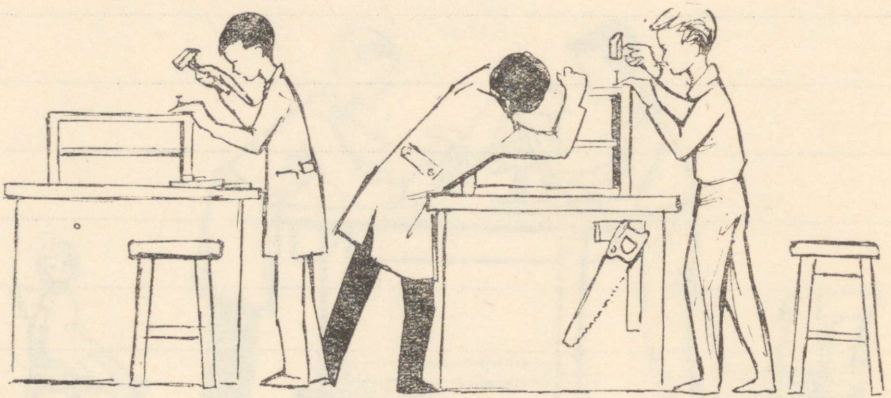

Jüri: Thank you very much. I am sure she will be very glad.

Jerome: The plan! Very good. Let us go for a walk together and visit the labyrinth today.
Harris: All right. We can walk about in the labyrinth for 10 minutes and then come back and have lunch together.

Later in the labyrinth.

- A Stranger: We have no guide. We cannot find our way out of the labyrinth.
Harris: I have a plan. Follow me.
A Stranger: Do you know where we are in the labyrinth?
Harris: No, I don't.
A Stranger: Then your plan does not help us.
Harris: Why not. Let us try to follow this path.
A Stranger: I have a plan too but it does not help when you do not know where you are in it. You can't help us.
Harris: Then we must wait for the guide who can show us the way out of the labyrinth.
A Stranger: Of course, we must, but it is his lunch hour and he will not be back so soon.
Harris: When he comes, I shall give the plan to him. Nobody can use it but he.¹
